ABOUT KAZAKHSTAN

Kazakhstan is the world's largest landlocked country, and the ninth largest in the world, with an area of 2,724,900 square kilometers (1,052,100 sq mi). It is a transcontinental country largely located in Asia; the most western parts are located in Europe. Kazakhstan is the dominant nation of Central Asia economically, generating 60% of the region's GDP, primarily through its oil/gas industry. It also has vast mineral resources.

Kazakhstan is officially a democratic, secular, unitary, constitutional republic with a diverse cultural heritage.[16] Kazakhstan shares borders with Russia, China, Kyrgyzstan, Uzbekistan, and Turkmenistan, and also adjoins a large part of the Caspian Sea. The terrain of Kazakhstan includes flatlands, steppe, taiga, rock canyons, hills, deltas, snow-capped mountains, and deserts. Kazakhstan has an estimated 18.3 million people as of 2018. Given its large land area, its population density is among the lowest, at less than 6 people per square kilometer (15 people per sq mi). The capital is Astana, where it was moved in 1997 from Almaty, the country's largest city.

The territory of Kazakhstan has historically been inhabited by Turkic nomads who trace their ancestry to many Turkic states such as Turkic Khaganate etc. In the 13th century, the territory joined the Mongolian Empire under Genghis Khan. By the 16th century, the Kazakh emerged as a distinct group, divided into three juz (ancestor branches occupying specific territories). The Russians began advancing into the Kazakh steppe in the 18th century, and by the mid-19th century, they nominally ruled all of Kazakhstan as part of the Russian Empire. Following the 1917 Russian Revolution, and subsequent civil war, the territory of Kazakhstan was reorganized several times. In 1936, it was made the Kazakh Soviet Socialist Republic, part of the Soviet Union.

Kazakhstan was the last of the Soviet republics to declare independence during the dissolution of the Soviet Union in 1991. The current President, Nursultan Nazarbayev, has been leader of the country since then, and is characterized as authoritarian, with a government history of human rights abuses and suppression of political opposition. Kazakhstan has worked to develop its economy, especially its dominant hydrocarbon industry. Human Rights Watch says that "Kazakhstan heavily restricts freedom of assembly, speech, and religion", and other human rights organizations regularly describe Kazakhstan's human rights situation as poor.

Kazakhstan's 131 ethnicities include Kazakhs (63% of the Kazakhstan's 131 ethnicities include Kazakhs (63% of the population), Russians, Uzbeks, Ukrainians, Germans, Tatars, and Uyghurs. Islam is the religion of about 70% of the population, with Christianity practiced by 26%. Kazakhstan officially allows freedom of religion, but religious leaders who oppose the government are suppressed. The Kazakh language is the state language, and Russian has equal official status for all levels of administrative and institutional purposes. Kazakhstan is a member of the United Nations, WTO, CIS, the Shanghai Cooperation Organization (SCO), the Eurasian Economic Union, CSTO, OSCE, OIC, and TURKSOY.

Fast Fact about Kazakhstan

The ninth largest country in the world, Kazakhstan is one of the most developed countries in Central Asia. It is very rich because of its abundance of oil and minerals. If you walk through the capital of Astana, you will feel as though you are in the future, because of all of its futuristic architecture. The cities are great places to meet people, experience the energy of the nightlife and shop to your heart's content. Not only does it hold promise in the cities, but also outside, as there are many adventures you may embark on whether in the steppes, valley of Tian Shan or quaint villages.

- Kazakhstan is the 9th largest country by size in the world. It's a huge place with a very small population of only 16 million people.
- It's the largest landlocked country in the world, with Russian to its North, China to the West, Uzbekistan down South and the Caspian Sea on its Western Border.
- Kazakhstan is landlocked, but it has a naval force, which is based on the similarly landlocked Caspian Sea.
- Most of the country is extremely flat and barren. This is the famous "steppe" (semi-arid and generally without trees, this area is extremely hot in summer and very cold in winter).
- The country is nominally Muslim, but there are few outward signs of this. Mosques are not frequently seen or heard. The many years of Soviet rule, when religion was downplayed, have diluted its importance in the country as a whole.

- Kazakhstan is the 9th largest country by size in the world. It's a huge place with a very small population of only 16 million people.
- The Downtown in Astana has relatively new city with a fancy, over-the-top skyline!
- War heroes' monument is located in Almaty and Uralsk as memory of the lost ones during the World War II.
- Kazakhstan is home to the Baikonur Cosmodome, the world's first and largest space launch facility. It is leased by the Russians until 2050.
- About 0.5% of the population is of Korean descent. Many women of all ethnicities set up market stands selling Korean salads and pickled vegetables. We loved making a lunch from these delicious offerings and the spicy carrots were amazing!
- The New Year for Kazakhs is called Nauryz, and it is celebrated on the 22nd of March.
- The largest water body inside the bounds of the country is Lake Balkhash, which is one of the biggest lakes of the world. The lake has a unique quality about it. One half of the water remains saline, whereas the other half of the lake has fresh water.

Living in Kazakhstan for studying MBBS

Food & Accommodation

Living is not an issue in Kazakhstan. For International Students, there a variety of options. Either they can get a university dormitory or stay in private hostels or rent living rooms with some hosts. Cuisine in the country is greatly influenced by the neighbourhood. From Chinese to Russian to European, you can find almost every food item. There are foods with quite some eastern European influence. Kazakhstan is relatively safe, not very congested and not polluted. Study MBBS in Kazakhstan.

Culture

Kazakhstan has a well-articulated culture based on the nomadic pastoral economy of the inhabitants. Besides lamb, many other traditional foods retain symbolic value in Kazakh culture. Kazakh culture is largely influenced by the Turkic nomadic lifestyle. Because animal husbandry was central to the Kazakhs' traditional lifestyle, most of their nomadic practices and customs relate in some way to livestock. The traditional Kazakh dwelling is the yurt, a tent consisting of a flexible framework of willow wood covered with varying thicknesses of felt. Study MBBS in Kazakhstan.

Climate

Kazakhstan's climate is sharply continental. That means, it's much like India, with winters being cold while summers being moderate. In some regions, temperature may go down very low but other times it is little cold to moderate, thus making it a favourite place to live in. Study MBBS in Kazakhstan.

Kazakhstan Tourism

Kazakhstan is largest landlocked country. Kazakhstan offers very beautiful cities to visit which are like 21st century showpiece with futuristic architecture. Apart from its modern cities, from mountains to plateaus to deserts and arid regions, Kazakhstan has a lot to offer you to travel and see. Study MBBS in Kazakhstan.
